Arjun's First Speech

Arjun was a quiet boy who loved writing stories but never liked speaking in front of others. One day, his teacher announced that every student would give a short speech in class.

Arjun felt nervous and wanted to skip school that day. But his best friend Mira encouraged him, saying, "You can do it! Just pretend you're telling a story." So Arjun wrote a speech about his pet parrot and practised it at home every night.

On the day of the speech, his hands shook, but he stood up bravely. He looked at the class, took a deep breath, and began. As he spoke about his funny parrot, the class laughed and listened closely.

When he finished, everyone clapped, and Arjun smiled wide. He couldn't believe he had done it—and even enjoyed it!
