Mia's Baking Day

Mia loved watching baking shows and dreamed of making the perfect cupcakes. One weekend, she decided to bake by herself for the first time. She found a recipe, put on her apron, and got started in the kitchen. Mia mixed flour, eggs, sugar—but forgot to add baking powder. She was excited as the cupcakes baked, but when they came out, they were flat and heavy.

At first, Mia felt like crying, but her dad smiled and said, "Mistakes help us learn." Together, they re-read the recipe and tried again—this time with baking powder.

The second batch came out fluffy and golden.
Mia decorated them with icing and shared them with her family.

She felt proud and learned that even baking mistakes can lead to sweet success.
