Ria Visits the Museum

Ria had never been to a museum before.
When her class went on a trip to the city museum, she felt both excited and nervous.

The building was big, with tall glass doors and quiet halls. They walked into a room full of dinosaur skeletons, and Ria's eyes lit up. She asked many questions and even took notes in her notebook.

Next, they saw ancient coins, old paintings, and a rocket model in the science wing. Ria was amazed by how much she could learn outside the classroom.

At the end of the day, she told her teacher, "This was the best trip ever!"
Her teacher smiled and said, "Curious minds discover the most." From that day, Ria started reading more books about history and science.
